Biolab Workshop Announcement

“An Introduction to Biolab Tests”

Saturday 6th March 2010, 10am – 5pm

The Oxford Suite, Hallam Street Conference Centre,
44 Hallam Street, London W1W 6JJ

This workshop is for clinicians who are just starting to use Biolab investigations. Following an introduction to Biolab and a review of why it's important to consider the nutritional and environmental influences on health and disease, there will be a series of presentations covering the use of tests for determining trace and toxic element levels, essential fatty acids and gut function.

Safety of nutritional supplementation and disease related profiles will also be considered and there will be a number of case presentations by experienced Biolab users illustrating the appropriate use of our investigations in the assessment and monitoring of patients.

All presentations will be provided by renowned clinical experts in nutritional and environmental medicine, including Dr Stephen Davies (Biolab Medical Director), Dr Nicholas Miller (Biolab Laboratory Director), Dr Damien Downing (President of The British Society of Ecological Medicine), Dr Alan Stewart and Dr Jennifer Goodman.

Attendees will receive Biolab test vouchers to enable them to learn more about our investigations at minimal cost.

If you would like to attend the workshop, please return the attached form promptly as there are limited places available.

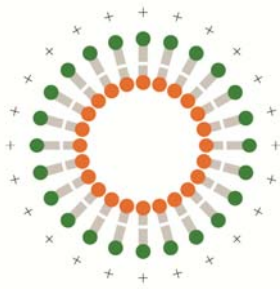

This meeting is recognised by B.A.N.T. and has been awarded four CPD hours.
